Attorneys for Real Party in Interest
HOLLY McDEDE

SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA
COUNTY OF MARIN

JOHN DOE, an Individual,

Plaintiff,

v.

MILL VALLEY SCHOOL DISTRICT,

Defendant.

Case No. CV0003896

REAL PARTY IN INTEREST HOLLY
McDEDE'S NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION TO PARTIALLY UNSEAL
ORDER OF JUDGMENT AND VACATE
ORDER GRANTING DOE ANONYMITY

HOLLY McDEDE,

Real Party in Interest.

Date: 08/20/2025, ~~2025~~
Time: 1:30 p.m.
Dept.: H
Judge: The Hon. Sheila S. Lichtblau

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on _____, 2025, at 1:30 p.m., or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard in Department H of the above-titled Court, located at 3501 Civic Center Drive, San Rafael, CA 94903, Real Party in Interest Holly McDede will and hereby does move the Court for an order: (1) partially unsealing the Court's order of judgment dated March 17, 2025; (2) making the partially unsealed version of the Court's order of judgment publicly available in a manner consistent with the Court's typical practices for public access to court records; (3) vacating the Court's order granting Doe anonymity dated September 18, 2024; and (4) unsealing any sealed records or redacted material in the court records insofar as it contains Doe's true name or, in the alternative, directing Doe to file a statement identifying his full and true name.

This motion is based on Rules 2.550 and 2.551 of the California Rules of Court and applicable California case law because any interest Doe may have had in sealing his identity and this material is now or will soon become moot and cannot outweigh the compelling public interest in its disclosure. This motion is supported by this notice of motion and motion, the attached memorandum of points and authorities, the pleadings on file in this matter, and any arguments raised at the hearing on this motion.

1 MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

2 I. INTRODUCTION

3 Information that a court has already held is public domain cannot remain under seal. “Once 4 the cat is out of the bag, the ball game is over.” Gambale v. Deutsche Bank AG, 377 F.3d 133, 144 5 n.11 (2d Cir. 2004) (citation omitted). This case is about the people’s constitutional right to 6 disclosure of records relating to alleged misconduct of a former public school employee.
7 Plaintiff/Petitioner John Doe commenced this case against Defendant/Respondent Mill Valley
8 School District (the “District”) to challenge its decision to disclose public records and to seek a 9 ruling that his own personal interests in privacy, professional reputation, and anonymity 10 outweighed the people’s right to know.

11 But Doe lost. This Court decided that Doe’s qualified right to privacy fails to overcome the 12 people’s compelling right to know about misconduct allegations against him and see for 13 themselves the public records related to those allegations, including learning Doe’s identity. The 14 Court allowed the District to disclose records related to at least five of nine incidents of Doe’s 15 alleged misconduct with Doe’s true name unredacted (“Disclosable Records”). The District is now 16 obligated to promptly disclose these records and Doe’s identity to Real Party in Interest Holly 17 McDede and to any other member of the public who might request the records. This information is 18 already or will soon become part of the public domain as a result of this Court’s order and the 19 District’s disclosure. The Court’s order of judgment therefore effectively disposed of any right 20 Doe had to proceed anonymously or maintain material from Disclosable Records under seal.
21 However, material derived from the Disclosable Records remains redacted in the Court’s order 22 and Doe maintains his anonymous status. Because this “cat is out of the bag,” any attempt to 23 relitigate that balance to maintain under seal Doe’s identity and material from the Disclosable 24 Records must necessarily fail; “the ball game is over.”

25 Even if Doe could somehow relitigate the balance of his privacy interest in his name and 26 material from the Disclosable Records against the people’s right to know, which he cannot, the 27 public’s interest in disclosure would once again heavily outweigh Doe’s qualified privacy right.
28 The public’s compelling interest in Doe’s name and the redacted material from Disclosable

1 Records in the Court’s order extends beyond assessing the District’s response to employee
2 misconduct, which the Court has already held was sufficient to overcome Doe’s right to privacy, 3 but also to preserving the transparency of our courts. Additionally, McDede faces ongoing 4 prejudice because the redactions impair her ability to assess the factual bases for the Court’s order 5 of judgment. For these reasons, McDede respectfully moves the Court for an order partially 6 unsealing the Court’s order of judgment — insofar as it redacts material derived from Disclosable 7 Records — and vacating the Court’s order granting Doe anonymity.

8 II. STATEMENT OF FACTS

9 Doe is a former employee of the District. Doe Decl. Supp. Mot. J. ¶ 2. In June 2024,
10 McDede, working as a freelance reporter, made a request to the District under the California 11 Public Records Act (“CPRA”) for records “related to claims of sexual harassment, sexual assault, 12 or boundary crossing or grooming behavior made regarding teachers or other school employees” 13 as well as “claims of sexual harassment, sexual assault, or grooming made to the California 14 Commission on Teacher Credentialing.” McDede Decl. Opp’n Mot. J. ¶¶ 2–4. Before Doe filed 15 this action, the District had decided it would disclose various records to McDede.

16 After receiving notice of intended disclosure from the District, Doe filed this reverse-17 CPRA action on September 6, 2024, seeking to enjoin disclosure of records related to at least nine 18 misconduct allegations against him. See generally Compl. & Pet.; Mot. J. at 3:12–6:2 (describing 19 nine allegations of misconduct against Doe); Doe Decl. Supp. Mot. J. ¶¶ 5–19.

20 On September 10, 2024, before serving McDede, Doe filed an ex parte application to 21 proceed under a pseudonym and an ex parte application to file the records at issue under seal.
22 Those applications came before the Court for hearing on September 11, 2024, and the Court 23 continued the hearing to September 18, 2024, “having considered that Real Party In Interest Holly 24 McDede ha[d] not been personally served in this matter.” Order Regarding Ex Parte Appls., Sept.
25 16, 2024, at 2. Doe effected personal service on McDede on September 17, 2024, the day before 26 the continued hearing on the ex parte applications. Proof of Service at 2. Having not yet retained 27 counsel, McDede did not appear at the hearing. Order Regarding Ex Parte Appls., Sept. 19, 2024, 28 at 2:8. Nonetheless, on September 19, 2024, the Court granted Doe’s Ex Parte Applications to

1 Proceed under Fictitious Name, File Documents under Seal, and Grant a Temporary Restraining 2 Order. Id. at 2:12–2:28. The Court issued no express findings in this order that Doe’s interests in 3 privacy justified his proceeding anonymously, filing documents under seal, or sealing information
4 regarding Doe’s position, school site, and date of employment. See generally id. Nor did the Court 5 articulate the factual basis supporting its rulings that sealing and pseudonymity were justified. Id.

6 “On February 26, 2025, the parties appeared on [Doe’s] motion for judgment on his 7 petition for writ of mandate. After hearing oral argument, the court took the matter under 8 submission.” Order Mot. J. at 1. On March 17, 2025, the Court issued its order of judgment, 9 denying Doe’s motion for judgment in large part and granting it in part. Id. at 24–25. The version 10 of the order that the court sent McDede “redact[ed] all quotations from and descriptions of the 11 Records” previously filed under seal. Id. at 1–2. In addition to the redactions, the Court did not 12 publicly post even the redacted order but instead sent it directly to counsel. Id. at 1. No express 13 findings appear in the redacted version of the final order that this sealing was narrowly tailored to 14 achieve an overriding interest that overcomes the right of public access.

15 The unredacted portions of the order reflect that the Court allowed the District to disclose 16 records related to at least five of nine alleged incidents of misconduct against Doe. Id. at 19, 21.
17 The Court held that public’s right to know outweighs Doe’s privacy interest in keeping his name 18 and allegations against him secret. Id. at 24:8–9 (“Disclosure of the [Disclosable] Records does 19 not offend Petitioner’s constitutional right to privacy.”). Doe has not applied or moved for a stay 20 of the entry of this order nor appealed it to seek a writ of supersedeas. As a result, to comply with 21 McDede’s CPRA request, the District must now promptly disclose those records with Doe’s true 22 identity unredacted. Id. at 9:14–18 (“The District wishes to release the Records in a form that 23 redacts only the names of third parties and leaves Petitioner’s identifying information visible. The 24 Court considers the Records with that in mind.”) (citation omitted); Gov’t Code § 7922.530(a) 25 (requiring an agency “make the records promptly available” after receiving a request for 26 disclosable records). Still, “all quotations from and descriptions of” those Disclosable Records 27 remain redacted in the court’s order, Doe continues to litigate this case anonymously, and the 28 Disclosable Records themselves remain under seal. See Order Mot. J at 1.

1 III. LEGAL STANDARD

2 A. Sealing Portions of the Court’s Order of Judgment.

3 Rules 2.550 and 2.551 of the California Rules of Court “apply to records sealed or 4 proposed to be sealed by court order.” Cal. R. Ct. 2.550(a)(1). These rules “provide a standard and 5 procedures for courts to use when a request is made to seal a record” that are “based on NBC
6 Subsidiary (KNBC-TV), Inc. v. Superior Court,” id. at advisory committee comment, a unanimous 7 and sweeping decision that fully embraced the First Amendment right of access to judicial records
8 and proceedings, in which the California Supreme Court held that judicial records may be sealed 9 only “in the rarest of circumstances.” NBC Subsidiary (KNBC-TV), Inc. v. Superior Ct., 20 Cal.
10 4th 1178, 1226 (1999)) (beginning its First Amendment analysis with the “celebrated dictum” that 11 “[w]hat transpires in the court room is public property”).

12 Accordingly, unless “confidentiality is required by law, court records are presumed to be 13 open.” Id. at 2.550(c). To overcome that presumption and order that a record be sealed, the court 14 must make the following express factual findings:

- 15 (1) There exists an overriding interest that overcomes the right of public access to 16 the record;
17 (2) The overriding interest supports sealing the record; 18 (3) A substantial probability exists that the overriding interest will be prejudiced if 19 the record is not sealed;
20 (4) The proposed sealing is narrowly tailored; and 21 (5) No less restrictive means exist to achieve the overriding interest.

22 Id. at 2.550(d). “An order sealing the record must ... specifically state the facts that support the 23 findings.” Id. at 2.550(e)(1)(A) (cleaned up).

24 Any party or member of the public may move to unseal a record. Id. at 2.551(h)(2). “In 25 determining whether to unseal a record, the court must consider the matters addressed in rule 26 2.550(c)-(e).” Id. at 2.551(h)(4). The burden rests with “the party seeking to seal documents, or 27 maintain them under seal,” to “come forward with a specific enumeration of the facts sought to be 28 withheld and specific reasons for withholding them” because he “is presumptively in the best

1 position to know what disclosures will harm him and how.” H.B. Fuller Co. v. Doe, 151 Cal. App.
2 4th 879, 894 (2007).

3 B. Anonymity.

4 Bearing “in mind the critical importance of the public’s right to access judicial 5 proceedings,” a “party’s request for anonymity should be granted only if the court finds that an 6 overriding interest will likely be prejudiced without use of a pseudonym, and that it is not feasible
7 to protect the interest with less impact on the constitutional right of access.” Dep’t of Fair Emp. & 8 Hous. v. Superior Ct. (DFEH), 82 Cal. App. 5th 105, 105, 111 (2022). “A party seeking 9 anonymity has the burden” of proof on these matters. Id. at 112. This party must also prove that 10 his “need for anonymity outweighs prejudice to the opposing party and the public’s interest in 11 knowing the party’s identity.” Id. at 110 (quoting Doe v. Lincoln Unified Sch. Dist., 188 Cal. App.
12 4th 758, 766–67 (2010)).

13 This “overriding interest test” is effectively identical to the sealing standard articulated in 14 Rule 2.550 because both issues are grounded in the same “important constitutional right”: “the 15 right of public access to court proceedings.” Id. at 110–11 (“Among the guarantees of the First 16 Amendment to the United States Constitution is that court proceedings are open and public.”). In 17 this respect, California law coincides with federal law, under which the strong presumption is that 18 “[p]laintiffs’ use of fictitious names runs afoul of the public’s common law right of access to 19 judicial proceedings.” Does I thru XXIII v. Advanced Textile Corp., 214 F.3d 1058, 1067 (9th Cir.
20 2000). Therefore, California courts find federal precedents instructive. E.g., DFEH, 82 Cal. App.
21 5th at 110–11 (citing federal precedent).

22 The Ninth Circuit has recognized that “that the balance between a party’s need for 23 anonymity and the interests weighing in favor of open judicial proceedings may change as the 24 litigation progresses.” Advanced Textile Corp., 214 F.3d at 1069. The Court “must also determine 25 the precise prejudice at each stage of the proceedings to the opposing party, and whether 26 proceedings may be structured so as to mitigate that prejudice.” Id. at 1068 (emphasis added).

1 IV. ARGUMENT

2 A. The Court Has Already Held that Doe’s Right to Privacy Must Yield to the 3 Public’s Right to Know Doe’s Identity and Records of Misconduct Allegations
4 Against Him.

5 Because the Court held that Doe’s right to privacy fails to overcome the public’s right to 6 know with respect to Doe’s true identity and the Disclosable Records related to his misconduct
7 allegations, that information must become public both in the District’s disclosure and in the court
8 records. See Order Mot. J. at 24:8–9. The appropriate remedy if a party objects to the court’s 9 disposition of an issue in an order of judgment is not a post-judgment motion to relitigate the issue 10 but an appeal.

11 Doe cannot rely on “the presumably rare case” of In re M.T., 106 Cal. App. 5th 322, 346 12 (2024), where the court held that a transgender woman’s privacy interests justified retroactive 13 sealing of the court record in the unique context of her earlier name-and-gender-change 14 proceeding, to support the ongoing seal on his identity and material from Disclosable Records. In 15 that case, the petitioner-appellant raised her privacy interest in secrecy for the first time in her 16 application to retroactively seal the records — she had not previously litigated and lost a claim that 17 her privacy interest outweighed the public’s right to know the information at issue, as Doe has 18 here with respect to Disclosable Records. See id. at 329–30. This Court made a final determination 19 in its order of judgment that the public’s right to know Doe’s identity and material from the 20 Disclosable Records overcomes Doe’s privacy right. See Order Mot. J. at 24:8–9. While Doe has 21 the right to timely appeal the Court’s order, he cannot relitigate that issue on a post-judgment 22 motion to maintain anonymous status and sealing of material from Disclosable Records.

23 Further, the petitioner-appellant only justified the extraordinary remedy of retroactive 24 sealing in In Re M.T. because “she presented evidence of harassment specifically directed against 25 her” that had already actually occurred and “evinced more than a mere possibility the public 26 availability of appellant’s records” themselves were precisely what “revealed her transgender 27 identity to her persecutors.” 106 Cal. App. 5th at 343. Doe has provided no similar credible 28 evidence that he has or will face harassment when his identity or the Disclosable Records become public, and he has not alleged membership in a protected class whose very identity carries an

1 “excruciatingly private and intimate nature” like the transgender petitioner-appellant did in In re
2 M.T. See id. at 338 (cleaned up). Absent such exceptional circumstances and evidence of actual 3 harassment like those at issue in In Re M.T., Doe presents no viable basis for reconsideration of 4 the Court’s decision that his privacy interest must yield to the public’s right to know his identity 5 and material from the Disclosable Records.

6 B. Any Interest in Sealing Doe’s Name and Material from Disclosable Records is 7 Now or Will Soon Become Moot.

8 Even if he could relitigate the issue, which he cannot, Doe can prove no overriding interest 9 in sealing material from the Disclosable Records or his identity, because that material must 10 promptly become public, mooted any alleged interest in sealing. “It should go without saying that 11 there is no justification for sealing records that contain only facts already known or available to the 12 public.” H.B. Fuller Co. v. Doe, 151 Cal. App. 4th 879, 898 (2007); Sipple v. Chronicle Publ’g 13 Co., 154 Cal. App. 3d 1040, 1047 (1984) (“There can be no privacy with respect to a matter which 14 is already public or which has previously become part of the ‘public domain.’”) (cleaned up).
15 Where a “plaintiff has provided no basis for a conclusion that keeping the records in question 16 under seal will prevent the public from learning anything it does not already know, or cannot find 17 out,” an order sealing the records cannot enter. Id. Accordingly, at a minimum, redacted material 18 in the Court’s order of judgment derived from the Disclosable Records must be unsealed, because 19 those records must promptly become public, mooted any interest in sealing.

20 In light of the Court’s holding that “[d]isclosure of the [Disclosable] Records does not 21 offend Petitioner’s constitutional right to privacy,” Order Mot. J. at 24:8–9, the District is now 22 obligated by the CPRA to promptly produce copies of those records to McDede, including Doe’s 23 name. Id. at 9:14–18; Gov’t Code § 7922.530(a). Once the District produces the Disclosable 24 Records to McDede, as it must, they will become “part of the ‘public domain,’” Sipple, 154 Cal.
25 App. 3d at 1047, with “no justification for sealing,” H.B. Fuller Co., 151 Cal. App. 4th at 898.
26 Additionally, any other member of the public could submit a request for these records at any time, 27 and the District would be obligated to disclose them, undoubtedly making them “already known or 28

1 available to the public,” for which the Court lacks discretion to seal. See H.B. Fuller Co., 151 Cal.
2 App. 4th at 898.

3 Even Doe implicitly conceded in his ex parte application to proceed under a fictitious name 4 that his anonymous status may change if the Court ultimately ruled that records at issue were 5 subject to disclosure, which it has now done. Ex Parte Appl. Proceed under Fictitious Name at 6 6:9–11 (arguing that no prejudice to the District, which knows Doe’s identity, would result from 7 Doe proceeding “under a fictitious name, at least until the Court determines whether the Personnel 8 Records are subject to disclosure under the CPRA”) (emphasis added)). Thus, any interest Doe has 9 in sealing material from the Disclosable Records and his name is now or will soon become moot 10 when the District discloses the records. “[W]hatever the state of public knowledge when” the 11 District originally lodged the records with the Court, “it is impossible[] ... to say that the matters 12 disclosed have not now become public knowledge,” given that the District must now promptly 13 produce the records to McDede. See H.B. Fuller Co., 151 Cal. App. 4th at 899; Order Mot. J. at 14 24:8–9.

15 C. Doe Cannot Prove a Substantial Probability that Any Privacy Interest
16 Overcomes the Compelling Right of Public Access to the Order and Doe’s
Name.

17 1. Access to the Sealed Material from Disclosable Records and Doe’s
18 Identity Is Critical for the Public Interest in Holding the District
Accountable.

19 As the Court properly ruled in its order of judgment, the right of public access to this 20 information is so compelling that it forecloses a holding that Doe’s privacy could outweigh it. The 21 issue is not whether Doe has a right of privacy in the abstract, but whether he has an overriding 22 interest that overcomes the right of public access in this case. See Cal. R. Ct. 2.550(d). Doe must 23 also prove a “substantial probability” that interest “will be prejudiced if the record is not sealed,” 24 id. at 2.550(d)(3), which “is a higher standard than ‘reasonable likelihood.’” Marino v. Rayant, 25 110 Cal. App. 5th 846, 857, 864 (2025) (quoting Alvarez v. Superior Ct., 154 Cal. App. 4th 642, 26 653 n.4 (2007)).

27 It is well established that the public has a compelling interest in disclosure of records that 28 “shed light on the public agency’s performance of its duty” to respond to such complaints, Versaci

1 v. Superior Ct., 127 Cal. App. 4th 805, 820 (2005) (citation omitted), and show “whether the law
2 is being properly applied or carried out in an evenhanded manner.” CBS, Inc. v. Block, 42 Cal. 3d 3 646, 656 (1986). The right to transparency is “intended to safeguard the accountability of 4 government to the public.” Reg. Div. of Freedom Newspapers v. County of Orange, 158 Cal. App.
5 3d 893, 901 (1984) (citation omitted).

6 In particular, “secrecy in public education is not in the public interest.” Copley Press v.
7 Superior Ct., 63 Cal. App. 4th 367, 376 (1998). In the context of public-employee misconduct, 8 “where the charges are found true, or discipline is imposed, the strong public policy against 9 disclosure vanishes; this is true even where the sanction is a private reproof. In such cases a 10 member of the public is entitled to information about the complaint, the discipline, and the 11 ‘information upon which it was based.’” Am. Fed’n of State Etc. Emps. v. Regents of Univ. of Cal.
12 (AFSCME), 80 Cal. App. 3d 913, 918 (1978). The Court applied this principle in holding that the 13 District may disclose records related to at least five allegations of misconduct that the District 14 found true or for which it disciplined Doe. Order Mot. J. at 19–21 (applying AFSCME and holding 15 the District may produce Disclosable Records to McDede).

16 Likewise, any privacy interest that could weigh against disclosure of material from those 17 Disclosable Records in the Court’s order has “vanishe[d],” given the Court’s holding that the 18 District found various allegations true and/or imposed discipline on Doe. See AFSCME, 80 Cal.
19 App. 3d at 918. The material from Disclosable Records that is redacted in the Court’s Order would 20 likely “shed light on the [District’s] performance of its dut[ies] to” maintain adequate oversight of 21 its employees, protect students, and carry out misconduct investigations and resulting discipline 22 “in an evenhanded manner.” See Versaci, 127 Cal. App. 4th at 820 (2005) (citations omitted); 23 CBS, Inc. v. Block, 42 Cal. 3d 646, 656 (1986). Without any privacy interest in sealing this 24 material and the considerable public interest in assessing the District’s actions, Doe cannot justify 25 ongoing sealing of material from the Disclosable Records.

26 Doe also cannot justify maintaining anonymity in this litigation under the overriding 27 interest test. “Outside of cases where anonymity is expressly permitted by statute, litigating by 28

1 pseudonym should occur ‘only in the rarest of circumstances.’” DFEH, 82 Cal. App. 5th at 111– 2 12 (2022) (emphasis added) (quoting NBC Subsidiary, 20 Cal. 4th at 1226).

3 To evaluate a school district’s performance of its duty to address staff misconduct, 4 information about the identity of the school, the identity of the employee, and the precise nature of 5 his position is critical to further the public’s ability to monitor the agency’s action beyond 6 anonymized records. Because investigations of employee misconduct often begin at the individual 7 school site, the public must identify Doe’s school site to assess whether the District has allowed a 8 culture of misconduct or improper discipline to exist at the particular school and whether an 9 individual administrator at the school site may be responsible for such a culture, for failing to 10 oversee his or her employees, or for imposing any inappropriate or inequitable investigation and 11 discipline schemes on them. Information on Doe’s position helps the public assess whether Doe 12 held relationships or a particular status that impacted how the District’s investigation and 13 imposition of discipline unfolded. For example, if Doe were a janitor for the District, the public 14 could inquire into whether the District took investigation and discipline as seriously for him, in 15 that position, as it does for classroom teachers and administrators, and vice versa. The public 16 could also assess if staffing shortages for a particular position may have encouraged the District to 17 retain employees who engage in misconduct.

18 Finally, Doe’s name and professional history are absolutely critical to the public interest.
19 The public’s right to know includes assessing whether the allegations against Doe in this District 20 were part of any larger pattern of allegations against this individual at any other current or former 21 public employers or related to any criminal history. The people must be able to inquire if and how 22 the District and Commission on Teacher Credentialing considered any such history in hiring, 23 disciplining, and credentialing Doe, or if they disregarded it. Knowing Doe’s identity also deepens 24 the public understanding of any inequities in the District’s investigation and discipline processes 25 because it can provide more specific information about his relationships, resources, employment 26 history, and more that may have impacted how the District treated him.

1 2. The Public Interest in Unsealing and Learning Doe’s Identity Is Even 2 Further Compelled by Maintaining Transparency in Our Courts.

3 The public’s interest in accessing the redacted material from Disclosable Records in the 4 Court’s order is even more compelling than the public interest in the records themselves, because 5 these redactions implicate not only the public’s interest assessing the District’s actions, but also 6 the court’s. “[I]t is a first principle that the people have the right to know what is done in their 7 courts.” Copley Press, 63 Cal. App. 4th at 373 (quoting In re Shortridge, 99 Cal. 526, 530 (1893)); 8 see DFEH, 82 Cal. App. 5th at 110 (“Public access to court proceedings is essential to a 9 functioning democracy.”).

10 Courts therefore recognize “the fundamental importance of issuing public decisions after 11 public arguments based on public records” because “[a]ny step that withdraws an element of the 12 judicial process from public view makes the ensuing decision look more like fiat, which requires 13 compelling justification.” United States v. Stoterau, 524 F.3d 988, 1012 (9th Cir. 2008) (emphasis 14 added) (alteration in original) (first quoting Doe v. United States (In re Admin Subpoena), 253 15 F.3d 256, 262 (6th Cir. 2001); and then quoting Union Oil Co. v. Leavell, 220 F.3d 562, 568 (7th 16 Cir. 2000)); see Est. of Hearst v. Lubinski (In re Est. of Hearst), 67 Cal. App. 3d 777, 784 (1977) 17 (“If public court business is conducted in private, it becomes impossible to expose corruption, 18 incompetence, inefficiency, prejudice, and favoritism.”)

19 No overriding interest can justify cloaking in secrecy material from the Disclosable 20 Records in the court’s order. In the very same order, the Court held that Doe’s privacy interest 21 could not justify secrecy of the Disclosable Records — the primary sources of the redacted 22 material that McDede now seeks to unseal. Confidence in the judiciary “cannot long be 23 maintained where important judicial decisions are made behind closed doors and then announced 24 in conclusive terms to the public, with the record supporting the court’s decision sealed from 25 public view.” Co. Doe v. Pub. Citizen, 749 F.3d 246, 263 (4th Cir. 2014) (citation omitted).

26 The people have a fundamental right to know “what [was] done in their courts,” including, 27 in this case, to know the bases for the court’s rulings on the Disclosable Records, unredacted. See 28 Copley Press, 63 Cal. App. 4th at 373 (citation omitted).

1 Like the order redactions, Doe’s continued anonymity cannot be squared with the people’s 2 compelling “right to know what is done in their courts,” see id., because the right to know the true 3 names of litigants also derives from “the critical importance of the public’s right to access judicial 4 proceedings.” DFEH, 82 Cal. App. 5th at 111–12.

5 In this respect, California law coincides with federal law DFEH, 82 Cal. App. 5th at 110 6 (citing federal precedent), under which the strong presumption is that “[p]laintiffs’ use of fictitious 7 names runs afoul of the public’s common law right of access to judicial proceedings.” Advanced 8 Textile, 214 F.3d at 1067. “It is the exceptional case in which a plaintiff may proceed under a 9 fictitious name,” Doe v. Frank, 951 F.2d 320, 323 (11th Cir. 1992), and the “normal presumption 10 in litigation is that parties must use their real names.” Doe v. Kamehameha Schs./Bernice Pauahi 11 Bishop Est., 596 F.3d 1036, 1042 (9th Cir. 2010).

12 Litigating under parties’ real names “allows the citizenry to monitor the functioning of our 13 courts, thereby [e]nsuring quality, honesty and respect for our legal system.” Does 1-3 v. Mills, 39
14 F.4th 20, 25 (1st Cir. 2022) (citation omitted). For instance, the true identity of litigants is essential 15 for the public to assess the parties’ credibility, to evaluate whether they are frequent or vexatious 16 litigants, to determine whether they have been involved in previous civil or criminal cases that 17 might have arisen from the same or similar facts, and to identify potential sources of bias in the 18 adjudicative process. See, e.g., Eugene Volokh, The Law of Pseudonymous Litigation, 73 Hastings 19 L.J. 1353, 1370–71 (2022).

20 Any risk of future economic or employment harms that Doe may raise cannot alone justify 21 the ongoing use of a pseudonym. Ex Parte Appl. Proceed under Fictitious Name at 6:9–11 22 (arguing that no prejudice to the District, which knows Doe’s identity, would result from Doe 23 proceeding “under a fictitious name, at least until the Court determines whether the Personnel 24 Records are subject to disclosure under the CPRA”). “[A]nonymity ‘has not been permitted when 25 only the plaintiff’s economic or professional concerns are involved.’” United States ex rel. Little v.
26 Triumph Gear Sys., Inc., 870 F.3d 1242, 1249 n.10 (10th Cir. 2017). “That a plaintiff may suffer 27 embarrassment or economic harm is not enough” to warrant a pseudonym. Doe v. Megless, 654 28 F.3d 404, 408 (3d Cir. 2011). “[W]e have refused to allow plaintiffs to proceed anonymously

1 merely to avoid embarrassment,” including when plaintiff’s “asserted interest lies in protecting his 2 reputation.” Doe v. Trs. of Ind. Univ., 101 F.4th 485, 491 (7th Cir. 2024) (citation omitted).

3 Doe cannot rely on Doe v. Lincoln Unified School District, 188 Cal. App. 4th 758, 767 4 (2010), for the proposition that public school employees accused of unfitness have an overriding 5 privacy interest in anonymity, because the issue in that case was whether the teacher had standing
6 to sue under a fictitious name. Id. at 765; see also Doe v. Dollar Tree Stores, Inc., No. 30-2023-
7 01359171-CU-OE-NJC, 2024 Cal. Super. LEXIS 11283, *3 (Mar. 28, 2024) (distinguishing 8 Lincoln Unified Sch. Dist., 188 Cal. App. 4th 758 on the same basis). No argument was made in 9 that case as to whether the facts supported an order allowing anonymity. Lincoln Unified Sch.
10 Dist., 188 Cal. App. 4th 765–67.

11 Even if proceeding under a pseudonym was justified at the beginning of the case “where 12 the injury sought to be avoided by the complaint (e.g., invasion of plaintiff’s privacy) would be 13 incurred by disclosure of plaintiff’s real name,” as Doe argued, Ex Parte Appl. Proceed under 14 Fictitious Name at 9:20–22, he cannot justify continuing pseudonymously after losing his case in 15 large part when the Court held that the District may produce the Disclosable Records with Doe’s 16 identity unredacted. Doe cites the “stigma of having been the subject of [] frivolous allegations” as 17 “the reason behind the filing of this lawsuit,” Ex Parte Appl. Proceed under Fictitious Name 10:5– 18 7, but Doe may not summon the power of the courts to “‘clear his name’ and wield a potential 19 [judgment] against [defendant] but hide under a shield of anonymity if unsuccessful.” Doe v. Doe, 20 85 F.4th 206, 215 (4th Cir. 2023); cf. Doe v. Megless, 654 F.3d 404, 410 (3d Cir. 2011) (upholding 21 denial of a motion to proceed anonymously and reasoning in part that “litigating publicly will 22 afford Doe the opportunity to clear his name in the community”); Doe v. Valencia Coll., No. 6:15-23 cv-1800-Orl-40DAB, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 198136, at *7 (M.D. Fla. Nov. 2, 2015) (“Plaintiff 24 cannot possibly ‘clear his name’ if he is unwilling to disclose it.”). For these reasons, Doe cannot 25 prove an overriding interest overcomes the people’s interest in assessing his use of their courts, 26 especially now that he has lost in large part.

1 D. McDede is Prejudiced in the Ongoing Litigation by the Court Order’s
2 Redactions and Doe’s Continued Anonymity.

3 McDede faces immediate prejudice from the continued sealing of material from 4 Disclosable Records and Doe’s anonymous status. Even if Doe could prove an overriding interest
5 in this continued secrecy, which he cannot, the Court must also “balance the need for anonymity” 6 and sealing “against ... the risk of unfairness to the opposing party.” Advanced Textile, 214 F.3d at 7 1068 (first citing M.M. v. Zavaras, 139 F.3d 798, 803 (10th Cir. 1998); then citing James v.
8 Jacobson, 6 F.3d 233, 238 (4th Cir. 1993); then citing Doe v. Frank, 951 F.2d 320, 323–24 (11th 9 Cir. 1992); and then citing Doe v. Stegall, 653 F.2d 180, 186 (5th Cir. 1981)).

10 As an initial matter, Doe did not even address potential prejudice to McDede in his ex 11 parte application to proceed anonymously; he only argued there was no prejudice to the District, 12 which has always known Doe’s identity. Ex Parte Appl. Proceed under Fictitious Name at 10:12– 13 19.

14 Now, because material from the Disclosable Records is redacted in the Court’s order of 15 judgment, McDede cannot discern which of the allegations against Doe will be disclosed and 16 which the District must withhold, resulting in prejudice. For example, McDede cannot assess the 17 bases for the court’s findings sufficiently to make a fully informed decision about whether to 18 appeal the Court’s order of judgment and/or potentially engage in settlement negotiations. Because 19 the District is obliged by the CPRA to promptly produce the Disclosable Records to McDede with 20 Doe’s identity unredacted, she may imminently learn Doe’s identity and the contents of the 21 Disclosable Records. However, even if that court-authorized disclosure occurs, McDede may be 22 barred from relying on facts learned therein in further briefing on this motion to prove the public’s 23 compelling interest in disclosure, given that a “record filed publicly in the court must not disclose 24 material contained in a record that is sealed, ... , or subject to a pending motion or an application 25 to seal.” Cal. R. Ct. 2.551(c). Accordingly, ongoing sealing of material from Disclosable Records 26 and Doe’s anonymity creates unjustifiable prejudice to McDede and this stage, weighing strongly 27 in favor of their unsealing.

1 V. CONCLUSION

2 For the foregoing reasons, the Court is respectfully requested to: (1) partially unseal its 3 order of judgment insofar as it redacts material from the Disclosable Records; (2) make the 4 partially unsealed version of its order of judgment publicly available in a manner consistent with 5 the Court's typical practices for public access to court records; (3) vacate its order granting Doe 6 anonymity dated September 18, 2024; and (4) unseal any sealed record or redacted material in the 7 court records insofar as it contains Doe's true name or, in the alternative, direct Doe to file a 8 statement identifying his full and true name.
